BERLIN (AP)—An East Berlin family of five slid down a rope and escaped to the West Tuesday night after being ordered to move from their second-floor apartment on the Communist border.

The mother suffered a broken leg in a fall the last few feet. West Berlin police said. Her condition at a hospital was described as good. The father and their three sons, the youngest, 9, were unhurt.

It was the first known escape of its kind since soon after the Communist wall divided Berlin in 1961, and it was the most dramatic in months.

More Wheat Okayed for Reds

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Commerce Department Tuesday authorized the sale of an additional $42 million worth of wheat to the Soviet Union and $10.5 million worth to Soviet satellite countries.

Licenses now have been issued for export of $167 million worth of wheat to the Soviet Union, but only one firm deal has been disclosed.

Last week a U.S. grain trader closed a deal for $78 million worth of wheat to the Soviet Union.

Moscow reportedly wants to purchase more than $250 million worth of wheat from the United States.

McNamara Stays If Rusk Travels

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Johnson has laid down the general rule that Secretary of State Dean Rusk and Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara should not leave from the nation's capital at the same time, it was learned Tuesday.

Johnson's concern over the continuity of national leadership also has prompted him to reduce the number of Cabinet officers to participate in high-level discussions in Tokyo late this month, government sources said.

Only three Cabinet members will meet with their Japanese counterparts Jan. 27-28—Rusk, Secretary of Commerce Luther H. Hodges and Secretary of Labor Willard Wirtz.

Blow Against Integration

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — A federal appeals court Tuesday tossed out Justice Department suits aimed at desegregating public schools near military installations in Alabama and Mississippi.

The 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals said "no occasion can arise for the suggested unprecedented and extremely dangerous exercise of the war power to affect the operation of the public schools of the state."

The United States had contended that it could exercise war powers to prevent local segregation of the children of members of the armed services and civilian employees of the military.

Berlin Wall Talks Set?

BERLIN (AP)—Mayor Willy Brandt says the East German Communists had written him about re-opening the wall for West Berliners, but said a time and place for negotiations had not been set.

His statement at a press conference Tuesday verified reports that East German Deputy Premier Willy Stoph had been in direct communication with him—the first time a German Communist of such importance has done so.

Goldwater Sees Win In Primary

CONCORD, N.H. (AP)—Sen. Barry Goldwater has opened a three-day swing through New Hampshire expressing confidence he can win the state's 14 delegates to boost his quest for the Republican nomination for president.

The Arizona Republican opened his tour Tuesday with a news conference at his bunting-draped Concord headquarters close to the Capitol, predicting he will win not only in the nation's first primary, in New Hampshire, March 10, but also in some of the bigger states, California, Oregon and Illinois. He said he also might enter in Ohio.

Goldwater said he will take his chances with the big industrial cities and predicted Republicans will gain in the suburbs, which he said are being dominated by the big cities.

New Hampshire, with its early primary, has been the base for presidential campaigns for years. It was a write-in victory here in 1952 that led underdog Dwight D. Eisenhower to win.

Pipher suddenly turned to Rader and asked the chairman if he wanted a motion calling for the recognition of Kresge.

Rader answered he did and the Democratic minority member promptly put the idea in motion form.

Price was visibly disturbed by the quick approval of Kresge.

In other business at yesterday's meeting the board ordered 1,000 vouchers for the new Monroe County Building Fund, set up to pay capital expenditures at the County Home in Kellersville.

"They also ordered two electric typewriters for use in the courthouse."

At the end of the meeting, the board summoned its office staff to talk over ways and means of improving office routine.

They discussed the possibility of placing a billboard in the lobby with a complete court-house directory. This Rader said would make it easier for strangers to find their way around the courthouse.

Tocks Views Differ

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The proposed Tocks Island Reservoir on the main stem of the Delaware River Tuesday was described on the one hand as an urgent necessity, and on the other as a blight on natural beauty.

Testifying at a public hearing, Easton's Mayor George Smith told the Delaware River Basin Commission that the flood control program embodied in recommendations for this and four other multi-million dollar reservoirs "is a life and death proposition for my city."

"It means the survival of our industry, the protection of our agriculture," Smith asserted. "We live in constant fear of floods, which sever our transportation."

"Our city was built on a flood plain. We can't move the city, but we can build the needed dams."

E-burg RD Woman

Mrs. Joseph Shukatis of East Stroudsburg R. D. 5, said the reservoir project is "taking fine land and inundating it in the name of progress."

Mrs. Shukatis lives opposite Tocks Island. Her home is situated in a proposed recreation area, which is part of the project.

Mrs. Shukatis suggested as an alternative the construction of a series of small dams along the tributaries of the Delaware. Such dams, she said, would provide adequate flood control "without having to make use of valuable land."

Three Hurt In Crash On Rt. 191

ANALOMINK — Three persons were injured yesterday at 6:55 p.m. in a two-car accident in front of Penn Hills Lodge on Rt. 191 near Analomink.

Injured were Judith E. Ziegler, 18, of Henryville, and operator of one car. She has abrasions of the nose and knees.

Eleanor Ziegler, 51, of Henryville, twisted ankle, laceration of the scalp and possible rib fracture.

Alvin Ziegler, 56, of Henryville, abrasions of the right knee and scalp and a bruised right side.

All were taken to the General Hospital of Monroe County where they were treated and released.

Police identified the operator of the second car as Charles Paolillo Jr., 29, Penn Hills Lodge, Analomink.

State Police from the Stroudsburg substation reported that Paolillo was entering the highway from a private driveway and intended traveling north. He stopped on the highway, and attempted to back off the highway.

Miss Ziegler told police that she was traveling south and did not see the Paolillo car until she was within 25 feet of it.

'Political Nit Picking' Hit By Gov. Scranton

HARRISBURG (AP) Gov. Scranton called Tuesday for more statesmanship and less "political nit-picking" in Commonwealth affairs as he presented a record $1.168 billion budget to the legislature.

"Both parties could profitably determine more time considering the long term impact of issues on the future of the state, and less time on political nit-picking which serves only to blur our real problems and bring disredit to what should be the noble profession of politics," the governor said.

He made the declaration in a combination State of the Commonwealth and Budget address to a joint House and Senate session of the legislature.

Scranton, speaking in the cool, emphatic manner which has become his trademark, evoked no applause from the lawmakers even when he declared that the budget — boosted by some $59 million over the 1963-64 budget — could be met "without new or additional taxes."

The governor told the lawmakers that a prime aim of his administration will be to achieve "a greater level of political maturity on the state scene."

"In this regard both political parties might well vow to be more constructive in their criticism," said Scranton.

Also, the governor said "Pennsylvania will not be able to afford either selfishness or timidity" in solving future problems.

The text of Scranton's address bore the title: "Building A Better Pennsylvania—A Glance Back, A Look Ahead."

Look Ahead

In a look ahead phase of his address Scranton issued a plea for human understanding in such things as Civil Rights.

"Let us all pray that we can indeed be 'big men,'" he said, adding:

"Let us all work to do our part to bring forth the full meaning of our heritage as Pennsylvanians . . . as Americans."

He told the lawmakers, assembled for a regular legislative session limited by law to budget and finance, that he would call them into special session to consider revision of the state's unemployment compensation law; amendments to the State Constitution, and implementation of Project 70, a long range park development program.

Scranton's glance back at his first year in office took on some political overtones in view of his emergence as a prospect for the Republican presidential nomination.

"Let me flatly predict that 1963 will be recorded by history as a milestone year in Pennsylvania's struggle for supremacy over shadows cast upon her by the industrial and technological revolution of the 20th century," the governor said.

"Our strategy" during that milestone year was built on the belief that it is the private sector of the economy, not government, which creates lasting prosperity. Government's role is to provide the climate under which the free enterprise system can flourish for the benefit of all."

Gov't. Economy

Economy in government was credited by Scranton for the bypassing of new taxes in his 1964-65 budget. He noted that it is in general government expenses "in which waste—particularly in government operating expenses is responsible in no small measure for the fact that we shall finish this fiscal year with a surplus."

Among the increases recommended by Scranton in the general fund outlays during the 1964-65 fiscal period:

—In the coming budget, perhaps the greatest human services item is an increase of nearly a quarter of a million dollars recommended for the Human Relations Commission.

"This increase, a nearly 50 per cent hike in the agency appropriation, will enable us to double the professional staff which works to head off racial conflicts before they can begin."

Scranton said other objectives for the coming year would include:

—Concentration on improving the administrative machinery of the state government.

—More intensive attention to industrial development.

—Greater understanding by the people of the functions of their state government.

—To seek greater justice, greater charity, greater equality, in relationships between the races. "Let us not, however, underestimate the role of the human heart. The issue of Civil Rights will only be fully resolved when men of good will—from both races — determine to resolve it in their hearts and in their consciences."

Johnson To Push $11 Billion Tax Cut

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Johnson administration decided Tuesday to try to give the voters an $11-billion tax cut before grappling with the explosive civil rights issue.

This word came out of a White House conference of Democratic leaders as the second session of the 88th Congress convened in the politically charged atmosphere of a national election year.

Electronic Super Spy Set By U.S.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States was reported Tuesday to have in operation near Iran a satellite territory a barometer-like system so sensitive it can measure the take-off and movement of Soviet missiles and space rockets.

The trade publication Space Business Daily said the instruments, part of a project called Headbone, are stationed in countries along the Soviet border and through a wide area of the Middle East.

The Defense Department had no comment on the report.

The publication said the instruments recorded the movements of all objects, even automobiles at close range, but that a method has been found for telling which are missiles or spacecraft.

E-burg Employees Get Pay Hikes

EAST STROUDSBURG — Full-time employees of the Borough of East Stroudsburg were granted a $100 annual salary increase last night by the borough council.

Council also passed a ten per cent per hour increase to all per diem employees of the borough.

Rejected by council was a proposed ten cent an hour increase to George Engelhardt.

Engelhardt is superintendent of the fire alarm system and is employed on a part-time basis.

Full time employees are members of the police force; Henry Lesoine, superintendent of water and streets; Durling Ace, assistant superintendent of water and streets; Carl A. Smith, office clerk and zoning official; Jesse Frantz, janitor and street cleaner; Carl L. Michaels, sewer plant operator; Earl D. Barthold, assistant sewer plant; Howard C. Dittus, plumbing inspector; Sterling Cramer, manager-secretary.

Per diem employees are Richard Ace, Melvin Fencal, James Dellaria, Robert Cruse and Willis Smith.

Vacation Plan

In other action council adopted a vacation plan with pay for borough employees with more than 4 years service.

Borough employees with three years of service or less will be granted one week vacation. Two weeks for an employee with more than three years service, and three weeks to employees with more than 15 years service.

Council also approved a motion allowing police to collect money from parking meters. This formerly has been handled by an office employee.

President Johnson will start the legislative ball rolling shortly after noon Wednesday when he goes before a joint session of the House and Senate to deliver what is billed as the shortest State of the Union Message in 30 years.

The opening sessions Tuesday were brief, formal, and weighted with things to come rather than with any immediate drama.

Battle Soon

The Senate, which soon may become the scene of a bitter filibuster fight over civil rights legislation, met for 23 minutes and then adjourned until Wednesday.

The House, where it takes longer to call the roll for a quorum because of its much larger membership, remained in session for 55 minutes.

The medical-care bill is expected to be one of the proposals that Johnson will lay before Congress in his message Wednesday.

Party leaders who went over the message with the President at a White House breakfast huddle declined to discuss details with newsmen, but Johnson already has indicated he will press for the late President John F. Kennedy's health-care program as well as for his $11-billion tax cut and civil rights proposals.

Johnson's message also is expected to stress a campaign against poverty and unemployment through educating the unskilled and retraining those whose skills have been made obsolete by automation.

Economy in government was credited by Scranton for the bypassing of new taxes in his 1964-65 budget. He noted that it is in general government expenses "in which waste—particularly in government operating expenses is responsible in no small measure for the fact that we shall finish this fiscal year with a surplus."

State News Roundup

First Lady To Visit State

WASHINGTON (AP) — Mrs. Lyndon B. Johnson's one-day trip to Pennsylvania's unemployment-hit hard coal area Saturday fits right in with her husband's program.

The President wants the federal government to take on a massive project against poverty.

The First Lady will be looking over projects in which the government has helped spark retraining of unemployed coal miners.

She also will speak briefly at the dedication of a new scientific research center at Wilkes College in Wilkes-Barre, Pa. It was built with federal aid in an effort to woo new electronic and chemical industries to nearby Pennsylvania towns hit by unemployment.

State To Lift Debt Ceiling

HARRISBURG (AP) — Gov. Scranton's commission on constitutional revision tentatively approved this week a proposal to do away with the state's $1 million debt limit.

At the same time, the commission also tentatively agreed to prohibit further authority borrowing on both the state and local levels.

It deferred action, however, on whether to include in any proposed new constitution a clause which would specifically outlaw a graduated income tax in the Commonwealth.

The present state constitution, effective since 1874, prohibits state government from incurring direct debts in excess of $1 million.

Barry Office In Pittsburgh

PITTSBURGH (AP)—A group of businessmen and Republican leaders boosting Sen. Barry Goldwater for President officially opened campaign headquarters Tuesday in downtown Pittsburgh.

Known as Western Pennsylvania Citizens for Goldwater, the organization was formed some weeks ago well in advance of the Arizona senator's declaration of his candidacy for the GOP nomination.

Sen. Carl T. Curtis, R-Neb., spoke at the headquarters opening. He lauded Sen. Goldwater, predicted he would win the nomination.

Leaders of the group greeted visitors. Girls handed out ribbons and buttons, distributed coffee and cake.

GOP Control Expanded

HARRISBURG (AP)—Republicans formally took control of the state tax equalization board this week with installation of one member and appointment of another.

Mrs. Ruth Glenn Pennell, Milford, was sworn into the $13,000 a year post by George I. Bloom, secretary of the Commonwealth.

In other action, Gov. Scranton named Walter J. Scheller, Connelville, to another position on the three-member board.

Another Republican, Frank J. Tienmann, Philadelphia, was named to the board earlier in the year.

Heat Debate Goes To Court

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The State Supreme Court was asked today to pass on the relative merits of oil or electricity for heating a proposed new county home in Lebanon County.

The case reached the high court on a writ of certiorari, which is a calling up of the records from a lower court.

On Nov. 27 suit was filed in Lebanon County Court of Common Pleas by Martin N. Shuey and Howard O. Stouffer, as individual taxpayers, and as representatives of the Property Owners Association of Lebanon County.

They contended that heating the home with electricity would be more expensive than heating it with oil, and asked the court to enjoin the county commissioners from awarding a contract for use of electricity.

Treasury Balance

WASHINGTON (AP)—The cash position of the Treasury Jan. 2, 1961:

Balance	$1,103,941,130.96

Education Aid Up $41 Million

HARRISBURG (AP) — Gov. Scranton's 1961-62 fiscal year budget, presented Tuesday to the General Assembly, proposes a $41 million increase in state expenditures for public education in Pennsylvania.

Scranton's program for public instruction from kindergarten through college in the year beginning next July 1 calls for expenditures totaling $395,359,535, which would be nearly 51 per cent of the total state general fund budget of $1,168 billion.

At the same time, the governor asked the legislature to approve an immediate $3.6 million appropriation to make up shortages in available funds for education, principally in teaching units.

Local Schools Hike

Subsidies to local school districts would be raised by $38.6 million to $179.9 million, mainly to cover the cost of teacher salary increases approved last year and for a variety of other local costs.

The appropriation to the 11 state-owned colleges will be hiked by $2.4 million to $19.3 million.

"This increase is absolutely essential to provide for increased enrollment, to meet increases in faculty salary costs and to improve the liberal arts curriculum at the 14 schools," the governor told the lawmakers.

Budgetary Tone

State Prospects Seen Brighter

HARRISBURG (AP) — Confidence of the budget framers in Pennsylvania's future economic growth was reflected in a decrease of $6,622,868 in the request for appropriations to finance public assistance.

It was one of the major decreases recommended by Gov. Scranton in the billion-plus budget he presented to the Legislature Tuesday.

The cut was one of the major decreases proposed by Scranton in his 1961-62 budget message to the legislature.

"The cost of public assistance payments will decrease with fewer persons on the rolls," Scranton said.

His proposal calls for an appropriation of $90,704,774 for assistance payments, compared to $97,327,642 set aside in the current fiscal year.

Retirement Fund

Another major decrease proposed by the governor is $3,006,600 in the amount required for public school employees' retirement.

Ten of the 23 government departments and agencies in the state face reductions in the operating budgets under the Scranton proposal.

"Most of the others have been reduced in operating expenses for existing programs, and show only small net increases because of new or expanded programs."

Other major cutbacks proposed by Scranton include:

—$83,000 in the appropriation for veterans' assistance based on fewer applications for aid.

—$529,000 in the amount for purchase of automobiles and commercial vehicles, based on statistics that show fewer vehicles will be replaced in the coming fiscal year.

—$100,000 in the cost of administering the sales tax.

—$99,000 in the cost of operating three diagnostic and evaluation centers for the Department of Public Welfare.

John M. Spencer, a wealthy politician devoted to the cause of mental health, left his post as Democratic State Chairman in Vermont, because he says he's an alcoholic.

County Solicitor's Pay Hiked $3,240

STROUDSBURG—Atty. Russell Mervine, new Monroe County solicitor, yesterday was granted a $3,240 increase to an $8,000 salary by the Monroe County Salary Board — the three county commissioners, Judge Fred W. Davis and Warren F. Loney, Monroe County treasurer.

Before the board acted, Mervine told the meeting why he sought the increase.

He said, "In addition to the many new items of work involved in this office and those that will come up in the future, there are some 20 tax appeal cases now pending and all with the possibility of going to court."

"Leo Achterman, former county solicitor, is the man who has prepared several of the cases for court action, if court action ever comes. Now the logical thing is for me to hire him as the attorney and for me to pay him out of my salary," he continued.

Mervine added, "As you know, the law so states that my salary cannot be increased during my term, but it can be reduced. When these cases are completed I will then be ready to talk about a reduction in salary."

Mervine said, "In the cases I'm referring to there is a considerable amount of money involved. The money, tax money, will go to the county and it is my belief that it is, or would be, a poor policy for one lawyer to step in and take over the work of another when the first attorney has all the information, and has done all the basic preparations for the case."

The board discussed the request and then voted. The vote was three in favor and one against. Voting for the increase to $8,000 a year from $4,760 were Commissioners Stanley Rader and Stuart Pipher, and Monroe County Treasurer Warren F. Loney. Commissioner John Price voted no. Judge Davis was not present at the time of the voting.

Other increases granted by the board are:

Commissioners' employees — Mrs. Ruth Logan from $75 to $80, Mrs. Mildred Hoffstadt from $85 to $90, Mrs. Loretta Banks from $75 to $80, and Miss Kathleen Fehl from $75 to $80.

The janitorial help and chief clerk will remain the same.

District Attorney's office — Miss Gloria Desko from $65 to $70 a week.

Judicial employees — will remain the same as they were until further notice.

Probation employees — Janet Pensyl from $65 to $70 a week, Kathleen Williams from $60 to $65 a week.

Monroe County Home employees all received a $2 a week increase in salary.

Chief Assessor's employees — C. A. Nauman from $100 to $106.54; Robert Stern, Robert Zellers and Kenneth Erickson each went from $96.54 to $106.54 a week.

All other employees will remain at the same pay level.

Monroe County Civil Defense employees — Mrs. Catherine Miller from $75.20 to $85.05, Mrs. Davis Tabler from $33.60 to $65.10 and Marvin Abel from $28.85 to $31. All to become effective on April 1, 1964.

Monroe County Sheriff Edward Metzger was in court yesterday and was unable to appear before the board to make his request. He will be heard at a later date.

All other county employees will remain at their present level until a future date.

Verdict: Day To Life

STROUDSBURG — The Barr-Walker Act, a federal law aimed at rehabilitating criminally demented persons, was used by Monroe County court when an East Stroudsburg man was sentenced to from a day to life in a state hospital.

Russell Winters, who pleaded guilty to sodomy during the December term of court, was sentenced to the Fairview State Hospital by Judge Davis when a report from the Allentown State Hospital showed he was in need of psychiatric help.

Winters' case will be reviewed every six months by officials at Fairview and if he merits release he will be placed on probation. If he spends 10 years on probation without getting in trouble his sentence will be vacated.

In other action the court: Accepted a guilty plea from Richard Moyer of Wilkes-Barre on charges of larceny and sentenced him to a one-year suspended sentence and ordered him to pay a $100 fine.

Sent Erick Pascolone of Wilkes-Barre to the Pennsylvania Industrial School at Camp Hill for an indefinite term. Pascolone pleaded guilty to burglary.

Accepted nolle prosequi pleas from John Becker and George Ludwig, Becker was charged with fornication and bastardy and Ludwig with assault and battery and surety of the peace.

In nolle prosequi action the prosecution refuses to press charges.

More Job Training Needed, But Methods Are Debated

STROUDSBURG — A 12-man panel agreed last night that increased vocational-technical education is needed in Monroe County but disagreed on how to provide it.

Stephen Sworen of the State Department of Public Instruction said a vocational school should have 500 students and teach at least ten trades.

He said the county school board must decide by Jan. 1, 1965, if a large enough attendance area, which can cross county lines, can be established.

State Aid

Sworen described the Bucks County vocational school operated by seven districts for students who continue to attend their "home high school" for academic subjects. State aid up to $105 a student is available for operating expenses, plus building and equipment aid.

About 55 people at the meeting sponsored by the Industrial Management Club of Monroe County, at the Penn-Stroud Hotel heard these major arguments:

1. "The potential of Monroe County is greater now than at any time in its history since it will be the hub of an important interstate highway system and an ideal location for industries. But we must have the personnel to man these plants if we expect them to locate here." Carlton W. Shaffer, president of the Industrial Management Club.

2. "We need it here in Monroe County, but I can assure you that we don't need it as badly as they need it in some other areas of the state.

"I have supported this vocational education program since I was elected to the state legislature in 1955." Van D. Yetter, Monroe County's state representative.

3. "We need chemists, plumbers, carpenters, technicians trained for the job. We can't instruct men on the job all the time." Harvey B. Burris, supervisor of the Stroudsburg Sewage Disposal Plant.

4. "The National Drug Co. laboratory in Swiftwater has to go all over the nation to find trained biologists, scientists. . . . We should train our own people in Monroe County who do not want other professional careers, take people in the so-called dog house and do something for them." Harold B. Kresge, GOP county chairman.

Careful Strides

"It must come, but we must begin with careful studies and analysis of the type of school we want. . . . There is both a rapid increase in untrained people and a rapid increase in the need for trained people." John E. Mills, superintendent, Pleasant Valley Joint Schools.

6. "A technical school is a must, but it isn't going to answer all the problems. It is an expensive thing and must be well planned. We must have careful surveys of what trades are needed. . . .

"It must not be a dumping ground for children who can't do anything else. . . .

"Stroud Union can't afford to do it alone. . . . Maybe we ought to combine with other schools in the county or even Pike County or some other counties.

"A boy studying one trade for four years must find a good job when he is finished. We must have the jobs available after they are trained." Earl F. Groner, superintendent, Stroud Union schools.

Dire Need

7. "This is a dire need. We must pull ourselves up by the bootstraps. . . . But there is a labor surplus in Monroe County of about 1,000 people and some trained people can't get jobs, they have to go outside the county.

"The unions have their own educational programs. . . . but we would welcome any help from any organization willing to further the cause of vocational training." Stuart F. Pipher, Monroe County commissioner and president of the Central Labor Union.

8. "We have three spanking, brand new high school buildings in Monroe County and new schools to build. Where is the money going to come from?"

"Would it be possible to stress two or three trades in different high schools which have existing programs? It must be county-wide or more than one county to have a large enough pupil population." Walter Sebring, assistant county superintendent of schools.

9. "We can handle three times as many students in the industrial arts program we have right now. We should give careful thought to what we have already in our schools.

"We need a large base of population. . . . Maybe we can transport students to Easton or a large area where they can afford to train people in many trades." Ralph Burrows, principal, East Stroudsburg Joint High School.

10. "I am wholeheartedly in favor of a technical trade school, but this dare not be a dumping ground for the poor student." Willis Dunlap, superintendent, Pocono Mountain Joint Schools.

11. "We will work in your behalf to make this industrial school possible in Monroe County." W.C.G. Peterson, Monroe County Democratic chairman.

EXPERIENCE COUNTS — Stroud Township supervisors with 20 years of experience on the board are from left, George M. Hallet, 22 years; Harold E. Albert, 20 years; and Jay Albertson, 26 years.

The statewide average showed a decline of one per cent for the quarter.

Commenting on the statewide decrease in the food index the department noted that the decline was due mainly to seasonal price declines in the fresh fruits and vegetables categories.

Sales Tax Issue

The biggest single service which state government provides to the citizens of Pennsylvania is aid to local public schools.

Gov. Scranton said yesterday that 51 per cent of his new 1964-1965 budget will be spent on education, up two per cent from the 49 per cent spent in the current fiscal year.

Then he pleaded with the press and public for understanding that the state sales tax, raised in the last legislature from four to five per cent, must by law be spent only for education.

"To this day only a fraction of the people in this state realize that the sales tax they pay is used to finance education."

"There is little public understanding that nearly a full half of the state general fund revenues are returned to the local school districts for use in providing education," Scranton told the joint session of the General Assembly.

If the sales tax were to raise more money than needed for state aid to education, it could not be used for other purposes.

The sales tax never has raised more than needed, and Scranton estimated that the sales tax in the 1964-1965 fiscal year would fall $78 million short of meeting the costs of education.

That may not happen. Revenue receipts announced last weekend showed that state general fund revenues for the first six months of the present 1963-

1964 fiscal year were 53 per cent from the sales tax.

Six month revenues totaled $306,769,000 for the six-month period ended Dec. 31—$864,000 above estimates. Sales tax revenues, which go into the general fund although reserved for education, were $212.5 million—$1.5 million better than expected.

At that rate, the sales tax could produce more than is needed for education. Scranton said it would produce 45 per cent of total revenues in 1964-1965. But that is a question for the future.

Right now, the Democrats are accusing Republican Governor Scranton of pushing the one per cent sales tax increase through the 1963 legislature so that he could present his "budget-without-a-tax-increase" in 1964, boast his fiscal integrity and austerity program, predict a $24 million surplus for next year, and gain national publicity in a presidential election year.

The critics have a sound point, which should not be lost amid the spate of national publicity Governor Scranton is receiving for his fiscal integrity.

That fiscal integrity and the increased state aid to education which the governor boasts is being paid for by the taxpayers of Pennsylvania through a higher sales tax.

We believe it is for a good cause—better education—but the governor must share some of the credit with the people who are paying the way.

Keep Blowing, Joshua!

The Pennsylvania Story

Budget Battle Looms

By Martin Denison
HARRISBURG — Anti-administration Democratic legislative leaders in this state are still blossoming 1964 session are determined to wage stout and all-out battle on the Scranton budget front.

The stand expected to be taken by the minority bloc is not so much from the standpoint of trying to kill this or that part of the budget itself—but rather a spirited determination to make certain they have every opportunity possible to study the fiscal monster thoroughly and in detail.

They tried the same thing during the regular 1963 session on the budget subject, demanding repeatedly (and fruitfully) that more time be given to public hearings on budgetary phases and facets to permit greater in-depth scrutiny.

This fell on somewhat deaf GOP ears, to the extreme detriment and ire of Democratic leaders who in the first place could see no reason (who could except GOPollies?) for breaking off the regular 1963 session (which in control GOP leaders did) before finishing the full budget picture—thus forcing (the later calling of the special session to act on the $72 million in non-preferred state aid.

This time though Democrats want a little more time devoted to combing the budget—and they may well get it, even though they themselves do not specifically have the on-paper votes to force it.

GOP leaders concede that some of their people have the same thought along this line—with the result that a coalition of Democrats and only a few "independents" Republicans could force expenditure of more than now-scheduled time on the fiscal tome.

There is however another trouble-maker brewing in legislative halls this session. The increased liquor tax (no whiskey rebellion in sight) enacted by the 1963 session has forced some very hard (no pun intended) looks among some of the lawmakers gentry since its enactment.

Complaints have been nominally loud and clear that the tax as increased last year has now virtually reached or exceeded the point of diminishing returns—or in other words, the state tax is so high now it almost pays to make your own hootch, or from a more practical though illegal standpoint, skip across the border to neighboring states for the glow-wine.

It isn't that Democratic lawmakers are more hootch-minded than their Republican counterparts, but they never were in no great a yeast for last year's tax increase in the first place, feeling the upstage rather would kill the goose that produces the golden fiscal eggs of the past—which some feel has already happened.

Liquor revenues are expected to see a surge on (ap from the Democratic minority side for repeal of the increased liquor tax brewed last year. It wouldn't require too many GOP lawmakers to make the tax repeal a fact but Republican legislative leaders feel, now at least, that they can stave off the rolling of the barrel in their own ranks to any great degree.

The point to be made in all this is that while administration Republicans do control both House and Senate, they do so by a very small edge in both instances—21-23 in the Senate (26 needed for control) and 108-98 in the House where 106 votes are needed to grip the whip.

In this session Democrats may be outnumbered and perhaps outmaneuvered—but they are determined not to be outgawked at least!

Their planned stout and all-out battle of the budget may be to no avail—or it may be quite productive. Seemingly they are on firm and nominal ground in insisting on adequate time to thoroughly study the budget—and they just may have something on tap on the liquor tax increase repeal front!

Scranton Administration legislative leaders may face just a little tougher time this session than originally anticipated.

Specifically have the on-paper votes to force it.

GOP leaders concede that some of their people have the same thought along this line—with the result that a coalition of Democrats and only a few "independents" Republicans could force expenditure of more than now-scheduled time on the fiscal tome.

There is however another trouble-maker brewing in legislative halls this session.

The increased liquor tax (no whiskey rebellion in sight) enacted by the 1963 session has forced some very hard (no pun intended) looks among some of the lawmakers gentry since its enactment.

Complaints have been nominally loud and clear that the tax as increased last year has now virtually reached or exceeded the point of diminishing returns—or in other words, the state tax is so high now it almost pays to make your own hootch, or from a more practical though illegal standpoint, skip across the border to neighboring states for the glow-wine.

It isn't that Democratic lawmakers are more hootch-minded than their Republican counterparts, but they never were in no great a yeast for last year's tax increase in the first place, feeling the upstage rather would kill the goose that produces the golden fiscal eggs of the past—which some feel has already happened.

Liquor revenues are expected to see a surge on (ap from the Democratic minority side for repeal of the increased liquor tax brewed last year. It wouldn't require too many GOP lawmakers to make the tax repeal a fact but Republican legislative leaders feel, now at least, that they can stave off the rolling of the barrel in their own ranks to any great degree.

The Allen-Scott Report

Humphrey Pushed

Robert S. Allen

WASHINGTON — The already badly boiling Democratic vice presidential battle is being further steamed up by a coup by Senator Humphrey.

The volatile Minnesota is to be the recipient of the 1961 award of the Four Freedoms Foundation "for distinguished service in the cause of freedom." It will be presented to the Senate Democratic whip at a big dinner in New York City, at a date still to be agreed on.

For Humphrey, the prestigious Four Freedoms award is a fortuitous break in the vice presidential scramble in which he is an unabashed eager aspirant.

In addition to affording him an imposing forum to make a well-publicized address before some 1,500 liberal, labor and other leaders, the award also places him in eminent political company.

Others who have received this award include former President Truman; the late Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt; the late General George Marshall; World War II Chief of Staff; Undersecretary of State Averell Harriman; Henry Cabot Lodge, Ambassador to South Vietnam and 1960 Republican vice presidential candidate; AFL-CIO President George Meany; and Dr. Ralph Bunche, top UN official.

Another recipient was then-Vice President Lyndon Johnson—who was formally designated for the 1963 award, but mysteriously never got around to settling a date to accept it.

This curious backstage hassle has never been clarified.

Strange Interlude — Early in the fall of 1962, Johnson agreed to accept the Four Freedoms award, and the foundation, headed by former Judge Ferdinand Pecora famed for his bare-knuckle probing of Wall Street in the early days of the New Deal, made preparations for an elaborate presentation dinner.

But as this column exclusively disclosed, Johnson repeatedly stalled on approving a date. At various times, he pleaded the long session of Congress, the grim Cuban missile crisis, a trip abroad and other excuses.

Finally, when foundation officials submitted three dates and insisted on a definite answer, Johnson's press aide sent regrets and asserted he was too busy.

Jarred by this strange brush-off, the foundation withdrew the award and none was presented last year. Privately, officials have since made no secret of their indignation at Johnson.

Senator Humphrey is responding very differently.

When the award was tendered by long-distance phone during the Christmas holidays, he accepted instantly and confirmed that in telegrams to foundation officials. He told them, "I gratefully accept this honor and will contact you in early January to confirm date for New York dinner."

Obviously, Humphrey feels that accepting this notable liberal award—which Johnson ducked after agreeing to take it—won't hurt his prospects to be Johnson's running mate.

The Four Freedoms Foundation, organized in 1951 to "perpetuate the ideals of the four freedoms of President Franklin D. Roosevelt," distributes literature in schools, sponsors essay contests, and presents an annual award to a nationally-known leader.

Politics — William Green III, son of the late representative and Philadelphia Democratic boss, may run for his father's seat. Young Green, 25, is a senior law student at Villanova, and has assurances of backing from a number of his father's top lieutenants.

HEW Secretary Anthony Celebrezze, former mayor of Cleveland, apparently is very enthusiastic about Washington's razzle-dazzle social whirl. He and his wife attend more parties than any other Cabinet member. Not far behind are Postmaster General and Mrs. Gronowski—like Celebrezze, appointed in 1963.

The inside word is circulating among California Democratic politicos that the new "man to see" for White House jobs and other reasons is Lloyd Hand, young Texas lawyer who lives in Bel Air, ritz suburb of Los Angeles. Hand moved there three years ago as representative. Houston insurance interests. A former assistant of Johnson, Hand is in close touch with the new President.

Hand also is close to Democratic State Chairman Eugene Wyman and Governor Pat Brown, both of whom are quietly grooming Hand for Congress or some other high office. Hand is staying in the background, but readily admits, "I'm glad to do whatever I can to serve the President."

Severe Epilepsy — Our daughter has a severe case of epilepsy. She lapses into unconsciousness every six months. We have been told there is a medicine to control this. Would you recommend it?

Mr. J.L.G., Ohio

Dear Mr. G.: The need for complete study of the cause and control of your child's condition is urgent. The contributions of modern-day medicine in the field of epilepsy are great. Immediate consultation with your physician will determine the nature of the epilepsy and the most efficacious drugs to keep the condition under complete control.

With such excellent medical attention, your child will probably be able to grow to be a normal and happy adult.

While Dr. Coleman cannot undertake to answer individual letters, he will use readers' questions in his column whenever possible and when they are of general interest. Address your letters to Dr. Coleman in care of this newspaper.

Hobson's Choice — "Hobson's choice" immortalizes a man who made a rule and stuck to it.

In the 17th century Thomas Hobson rented horses at Cambridge, England. He had a rule that any person who rented a horse must take the one which stood nearest the stable door.

No matter what station in life the customer held, nor how much he might argue or wheedle, Hobson stuck to his rule: Take the horse nearest the door, or none at all.

It did not take long for "Hobson's choice," which means no choice at all, to gain popular usage.

Comment Of The Day

"Now that the Holy Father has shaken hands with a Moslem king and a Jewish president and placed himself under the protection of their authorities and police, now that he has embraced an Orthodox Patriarch before television cameras, all our Vatican pageantry, our papal court with its Swiss guards and dignitaries in black velvet and Spanish ruffs look suddenly terribly archaic, if not slightly funny."

Barbecue Shocks Chef

By George Dixon
WASHINGTON — White House correspondents returning from their "holiday" travels and travails in Texas report that the vicinity of the Lyndon B. Johnson ranch may well be the only place in the world where the natives make a two-syllable word out of "grits."

The journalists testify that the folks of Johnson City and environs achieve this seeming linguistic impossibility by saying:

"Will you have some more grits?"

The single individual most flabbergasted by two-syllable "grits" was Rene Verdon, the White House's snooty French chef. Mr. Verdon spent much of his time in Texas staring in fascinated horror at the native culinary operations. If there is one item of delectable Texan cookery that caused him to shudder more than any other, however, it was grits. He took the uncompromising stand that it was unfit for human consumption, and that pronouncing it with two syllables only made it twice as bad.

Mr. Verdon, famed on two continents for his delicately sauced filets de boeuf, roti maitre de chais, also was amazed at the spectacle of prime steer beef being barbecued outdoors over charcoal.

All the Gallic in him was shaken into three parts by the barbarian incineration, as it seemed to him.

But members of the presidential entourage, who didn't go to Texas at all, also had a soul-shivering experience. Those who remained at 1600 Pennsylvania Avenue, clinging to their jobs, and wondering how long the jobs would cling to them, had a momentary fright from which many are not yet recovered.

They were scared witless by their napkin rings.

As everybody knows by now, the White House and executive offices are overcrowded to the point of suffocation because, like in Noah's Ark, there are two of everything. Virtually every job is double-filled by an old Kennedy man and a new Johnson man.

There's no room—but plenty of rumors.

The most persistent rumor is that any day, any hour, the Kennedy holdovers may receive courteous invitations to relieve the overcrowding by getting the heck out.

The denizens who go by two by two to enjoy the privilege of eating in the Saxy mess in the basement of the White House—if they have enough rank, Cabinet members visiting the President may eat there, too; and the same goes for governmental luminaries having frequent business at the White House, as for instance, chief of protocol Angier Biddle Duke.

Each of the Kennedy holdovers has an individual silver napkin ring engraved with his name. After shoveling in the last of the winds, the napkin ringholders wipe their little mouths delicately and return the napkin to the ring, to be used in unsanitary elegance at the next meal. Four days after President Johnson's return from Texas, however, all the Kennedyites were presented with their napkin rings and informed they might take them home as mementos.

Radical Speakers Banned On Some College Campuses

By Richard Spong
Editorial Research Reports
WASHINGTON — Virginia's General Assembly meets today, one of 23 state legislatures holding regular sessions this year, and a controversial bill barring from the campuses of tax-supported colleges and universities Communist or Nazi speakers will probably be introduced.

It stands little chance of passage, inasmuch as it is opposed by Gov. Albert S. Harrison and the influential Richmond News Leader.

Nonetheless, a trend appears to be in the making. Ohio enacted a measure last year that in its original form excluded outside Communist speakers.

As amended, however, the law merely confirms authority of university officials to ban speakers. Agitation for a similar measure exists in Minnesota.

But in North Carolina the original Ohio bill was rushed through the legislature in the closing hours of the 1963 session.

The Greensboro Daily News commented editorially: "The opposition was not informed of the bill's existence. In the House there was no debate, and in the Senate... presiding officer Clarence Stone... shouted objections down and cut them off without a record vote."

The Governor is denied veto power by the state constitution.

Censorship Study
Campus censorship is discussed in a study prepared by Daniel H. Pollit, professor of law at the University of North Carolina.

He traces efforts to stifle radicalism in colleges and universities through control of teachers, of the curriculum, of text books, and of outside speakers.

Under the latter heading he lists such recent occurrences as Ohio State University's denial of permission to speak on campus to a Quaker pacifist

In 1951, and the refusal by the president of the University of Washington in 1955 to allow Robert Oppenheimer to address a conference of scientists on the campus.

Yale University originally overrode a student invitation to Alabama's Gov. George C. Wallace, but on reconsideration reluctantly rescinded the ban.

Communist Bans
Pollit cites an article in the St. Paul Pioneer Press listing clearly enunciated bans on Communist speakers at the universities of Illinois, Ohio State, Indiana, and Washington. All state supported.

Major universities which clearly permit Communists or other known subversives to speak include California, Minnesota, Michigan State, Wisconsin, Iowa, Pennsylvania State, Oregon, Colorado, and the City College of New York. All tax supported, and Stanford, Cornell, Princeton, Columbia, Harvard, and Dartmouth.

Campus Gag Laws
The faculty of the University of North Carolina in a resolution of Oct. 22 unanimously opposed the speaker ban, stating: "A political body is far from an ideal forum in which to regulate such matters of education policy."

The Greensboro Daily News speaks for a consensus of the North Carolina press when it states:

"Campus gag laws are not natural expressions of our values. They rather give voice to the values of authority, who refuse dissent a forum on the grounds, apparently, that dissent is a danger."

Speaking Of Your Health:

Doctor, I'd Like To Know

By Lester L. Coleman, M.D.
I have a seven-year-old boy who has unusually large ears. They stick out from the side of his head. The children at school tease him. I cannot afford plastic surgery. Is there any other way to cure this?

Mrs. S. S., Illinois

Dear Mrs. S.: It is not unusual to have the condition of the ears that you describe. It is unfortunate that young children will use such a mild physical defect as a cruel teasing device.

It is important that your child be protected so that he will not pay a special penalty for this characteristic.

Corrected By Surgery
Plastic surgery is the only way to remedy the size and appearance of the ears. To embark on any other program that uses "shrinking cures," special ointments and adhesives only delays a happy solution of your child's problem.

There are many resources in the large city where you live for excellent plastic surgery. Your concern about your modest income is understandable. Yet, your child need not be deprived of the advantages of modern-day surgery because of your limited finances.

Your own physician can readily direct you to the hospital facilities for the surgical relief of this distressing problem. Your child will benefit immeasurably emotionally and physically by the operation.

Wrist Tumor
I have been told that I have a ganglion tumor of my wrist. I have some discomfort when I move my hand. Is this dangerous? What causes it? Should I have it removed?

Mr. M.E.R., West Virginia

Dear Mr. R.: A ganglion tumor is really a cystic swelling that lies close to the joints and the tendons of the wrist. It is called by the interesting name of "weeping sinew" because it often contains a thick gelatinous fluid. These ganglions are definitely not dangerous. They have never been known to become malignant.

There are two ways of treating this condition. The first method has been handed down from family to family for many years. This wise "grandmother's remedy" was to strike the ganglion with a smart, snappy blow with a Bible. The Bible, of course, chosen because it was the heaviest book available.

Unfortunately, the cystic swellings recurred and necessitated a number of additional whacks for a possible cure. The next method is, of course, the surgical removal of the ganglion. This insures that the condition will, in all likelihood, never recur.

The choice of treatment must, of course, be determined by your own physician after the exact nature of the swelling is determined, for there may be other conditions in the same area of the wrist that may be confused with the "weeping sinew."

Famous Designers' Latest Creations Previewed For Fashion Editors

By Bobby Westbrook

Daily Record Family Fare Editor

NEW YORK — In contrast to most years, the burning fashion question this year has not been hemlines but necklines. It is true that in some of the evening fashions, the question fashion editors covering National Press Week in New York have to answer for themselves is whether they should call it a neckline or waistline, but relax, girls!

Those who need up-lift long-lines can wear them and those for whom it couldn't matter, can always wear the cowl neckline.

It is true that the fashions are more feminine—gone the sportive, muffled-up look and enter the ruffles, the waistline, the flutter of full skirts and the demure look white collars and little-girl gloves, and, of course, those necklines.

And it is also true that people who work with fashions have to have a sort of sixth sense as to what the mood of the world, its women and the men who pay for what they wear will be practically a year in advance. Certainly when Kittie Campbell was planning for the opening of the New York Couture Group press showings, she couldn't have foreseen that for press week New York should be basking in Spring-like weather, but as an example of that sixth sense, she had arranged for Carol Reed, the television weather girl, to comment on coming trends in the world of fashion.

Fashion Forecast

So if you'd like a fashion weather forecast, here it is.

Early Spring snow: drifts of white that will last all summer, for daytime or evening, in tapestry-weave woollens for coats, teamed with off-whites in suits, white chiffon or linen with lace for dresses.

New air currents—with waistlines; fitted tops and full skirts, box-pleated or in clusters of gathers; bias cut so that every fashion move ripples in fabric.

Brisk trade winds in the crispy tailored suits in pin-striped naives or chalk-striped grey flannels, and blazers blazing a trail right through the season.

Drifts of color in jungle prints, modern art, flower prints and clear rain-washed pastels; sunny yellows, pinks from a sunset, greens from freshet-swollen streams, blues from twilight skies, in fabric that puff, fluff, or crisp.

Night winds are billowy in chiffons, organzas, pure silks in trailing capes, scarves and big sleeves to float behind.

Fair And Warmer

Fair and warmer: suits are optimistic about an early thaw with many collarless necklines, and dresses more than optimistic about summer evenings with necklines that go down to here—sometimes in back—more provocatively in front.

Well, that's the weather forecast. How the individual designers live up to it is still anybody's guess. However, the weather-wise could read certain omens in the showings of hats, shoes, cosmetics and jewelry preceding the formal opening of press week.

It isn't just the couturiers who have to watch the fashion climate but all the affiliated groups, not only the obvious ones like milliners and cobblers but the gloves, the cosmetic makers, the jewelers. Men may deary women's changing fashions but the whole domestic economy would probably go in a tailspin if just once there was nothing new for spring.

Not to mention the men who, however much they may poke fun at the Easter bonnet, would be mighty disappointed if the women in their lives took to babushkas. There's not much danger of that this year when hats are big, beautiful and hatty with a definite authority.

Brunch Opens Show

The first major show of the Couture Group fashions was the brunch sponsored by the Millinery Institute at the red and blue plush-lined Royal Box at the Americana. Theme of the show was "What a Difference a Hat Makes"—and it does, when each hat is chosen to complete the costume look of elegant ease.

Uncluttered hats with generous crowns and swooping brims were used for small suits and cropped coats. Brims, generally are bigger! the crowns fit comfortably on the head (there was an occasional small crown, those of you who hoard old hats will be glad to note). Some of the brims roll back with a fine wind-swept look, some sweep down to shadow the face with translucent straw or whipped cream ruffling. Sugar scoops dip deep in front and arch high in the back. Padre brims curl gently.

Flowers, that perennially bloom on the Easter bonnet, are used with a difference this year. They are not just stuck on to trim a hat but are used as an integral part of the silhouette itself, not merely flowery but basic.

Proving its point, the Millinery Institute awarded its annual Golden Hat awards: to Maureen O'Sullivan for the theater, wearing a hat of fluttering brown ostrich feathers; to Jane Morgan for popular music in an orange and white straw to match her orange shantung dress; to Rise Stevens for classical music in a mink hat; to Kitty Carlisle, television, in a side-draped turban; to Mrs. Mark Hatfield wife of the Oregon Governor, for public affairs, in green leaves with a single red flower.

Entertainment Personalities

Hildegard, Jessica Tandy and Gianna d'Angelo who presented the awards did themselves proud in the hat line, too. Television cameras and celebrities more than made up for the fact that not many people were eating scrambled eggs. That was because they'd just come from Trifari's brunch where in addition to scrambled eggs, they had had canape cups made of the ends of egg whites filled with caviar, not to mention champagne, fresh fruits, and roast beef.

THE FEMININE LOOK is also being achieved through bias cuts as in the Bill Blass design for Maurice Rentner in a three-piece silk crepe navy suit. The bias cardigan jacket is sleeveless with side vents above a slim bias-cut skirt. The white silk crepe bias-cut raglan torso blouse is softly belted. Photographed in the New York town-house of William Schneider.

THE WOMANLY LOOK has taken the place of the mannish trend, sometimes fitted snugly as in Branell's two part costume for town wear in tobacco and black printed Fibranne. The slip sleeveless dress is belted in leather patent leather and worn beneath a single-breasted box jacket detailed with a flat, round collar.

THE FULL FLOWING LOOK in sleeves, bodices and skirts. Here Anthony Blotto keynotes alabaster white in a full-bodied crepe dress. The bodice is gently bloused with a softly shirred scoop neckline, a cocoa leather belt leashes the waist above an apron-fronted sheath skirt, worn under a sleeveless wool coat.

RUFFLES . . . RUFFLES . . . ruffles for Spring 1964's favorite cape silhouette are used by Gothe to cover bare shoulders. The costume is a chiffon organza print, the strapless gown flows from a draped bodice accented by a pink velvet bow.

Slaters Trim Stroud Union

SLATINGTON—A cold spell in the very first period by Stroud Union helped send the Mountaineers down to defeat in their first Lehigh Valley League appearance of the season last night as the Slaters of Slatington gained an 84-72 victory.

Coach Wilmont Smith's crew tallied but six points in the opening quarter while Slatington hit for 15 which gave the home club the momentum to carry through.

The loss was the third in six starts for the Mountaineers. Stroud Union narrowed the gap to three points twice in the third period at 51-48 and at 50-53 but that was as close as the Mount and White came. Slatington pulled away after that to win in a breeze.

Paces Attack
Dave Wannamaker, 6-5 senior, paced the Slaters with 22 points while Ben Harris and Bob Davis each hit for 16. Bob Hoffman chipped in with 11 for the victors.

Scoring honors in the game, however, went to Stroud Union's Dave Pierson who connected on 12 field goals and two foul shots for 26 points. John DeVivo added 24 in a losing cause while Glenn Bisbing, making his first start since fracturing his forearm last football season, pumped in 14.

Slatington also gained the nod in the JV battle by a 69-49 margin.

Wilson Borough Wallops Eastburg In L-N Contest

WILSON BOROUGH—East Stroudsburg's Cavaliers last night suffered their fifth straight loss of the season—and third in Lehigh-Northampton League play—as defending champion Wilson Borough walloped to a 61-46 triumph.

The Warriors zipped out in front at the end of the first period, 26-12, and were never headed thereafter. Eastburg was outscored in every period and trailed at halftime, 40-30.

Gary Laubach ripped the nets for 25 points to set the scoring pace for the winners. Also hitting in double digits for the Warriors were Bill Steele and Steve Hickey, each with 15.

Nick Kurliko with 11, and Bob Chandler with 10.

Scott Stars
Doug Hilyard was high scorer for the Cavaliers, hitting on 10 field goals and two free throws for 22 points. Bob LaBar hit for 18 and Russ Scott hit the cords for 17. Scott, who played an outstanding game in a losing cause, also picked off 22 rebounds.

Neither team was sharp at the foul line. East Stroudsburg connected on only 12 of 33 attempts, while Wilson connected on 18 of 33.

The loss was the sixth in eight outings for the Cavaliers, while the Warriors picked up their second league victory after starting off the season with five straight exhibition losses.

Wilson also won the preliminary JV game, 67-33.

Finley Ponders Lawsuit If A. L. Rejects K C Move

KANSAS CITY (AP)—Charles O. Finley of the Kansas City Athletics is considering a law suit against other American League owners if they don't approve his proposal to move the club to Louisville. The Associated Press learned Tuesday.

A source close to Finley and the owners said the conditional contract Finley signed with the state of Kentucky could be a peg on which to hang a suit charging the owners with restraint of trade.

Finley several times in recent weeks said he didn't know whether a franchise move would be approved. The Kentucky contract, signed 10 days before a league meeting to mediate his bitter stadium lease dispute with Kansas City, stirred up protests from the owners. It only seemed to lessen his chances of moving the club.

Finley Confident
Yet the stormy insurance executive insisted he was confident the owners would change their minds and approve the move, once they heard his side of the contract dispute with the city. The meeting is set for Jan. 16 in New York.

Finley charges the city with treating him unfairly in comparison to the lease given the Kansas City Chiefs of the American Football League. He says he was in the middle between two City Councils, the outgoing council which gave him a lease—as an emergency measure—minutes before it left office and the present council which voided it as illegal on two counts.

City officials accused Finley of not bargaining in good faith, after his Louisville proposal Monday.

"It confirms what we have felt all along," said Mayor Irl Davis. "Finley didn't want to stay in Kansas City under any terms. He wasn't negotiating in good faith."

One thing seemed certain in the maze of charges, counter-charges, offers and counter-offers—Finley has no desire to sell the club.

The Associated Press learned two prominent Kansas Cityans are ready to join in purchasing the club, any time Finley expresses a desire to sell. Finley has been approached at least twice about his selling price. His answers, neither serious, were $25 million and $10 million.

Gets Opening
The fiery A's owner got an opening when the former council and mayor gave the pro football team a long-term lease in May. It is for seven years with two six-year options. The Chiefs pay $1 a year the first two years, then 5 per cent of gross ticket receipts each year only when they exceed $1.1 million.

The old council handed Finley a seven-year contract scant minutes before it left office and the present council took over. It had two seven-year options. Finley would have paid the 5 per cent on ticket sales only if attendance exceeded $50,000. It also had a 60-day escape clause allowing him to move if attendance fell under $50,000.

Finley was irate when the present council voided it, contending it wasn't legal under new curfew rules and didn't satisfy the city charter requirement for an emergency bill.

Minimal Rent
Davis and the present council said the city must have a minimal rent to repay $3.1 million in bonds used to purchase the stadium and enlarge it for the first A's owner, Arnold Johnson, in 1955.

It sent Finley various lease proposals, contending each was more favorable than any agreement ever offered an owner of a major league club for use of a municipally-owned stadium.

Finley replied the real issue is whether any of the city's proposals are as fair to him as the lease given the football team. He insisted none came close to the deal given the Chiefs.

Marks Unmatched
It is 27 years since Medwick went on that batting binge in 1937 but some of those marks haven't been matched since. No one has since equalled his hits, doubles, runs batted in and total bases for 1937. Only Stan Musial has hit higher than his 374.

Reached at his St. Louis home by telephone, Medwick said that "getting into the Hall of Fame is every player's dream. I happen to feel I deserve the honor. I've been criticized for expressing that feeling. I don't see anything wrong in voicing my belief."

Gives Position
The news conference was called to give Santa Anita's position on the strike called Monday night by post-mutual clerks and others affiliated with the Building Service Union.

General Manager James D. Stewart of Hollywood Park, who also attended the conference, said his track is also thinking of using its property for other purposes.

"We have been making preliminaries for some time," Stewart said, "and the studies will be finalized when our board of directors meets tomorrow."
